About Youth Tour...

The Rural Electric Youth Tour is a group of more than 1,800 high school students who visit Washington, D.C., every June, year after year, from towns and small cities all over rural America. They come because their rural electric cooperatives think education is important — education about electric cooperatives and education about America.

Senator Lyndon Johnson inspired the Youth Tour when he addressed the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association (NRECA) Annual Meeting in Chicago in 1957. The senator declared, "If one thing goes out of this meeting, it will be sending youngsters to the national capital where they can actually see what the flag stands for and represents."

Then, beginning in 1957, some of the Texas electric cooperatives sent groups of young people to Washington to work during the summer in Senator Johnson's office and learn more about government in action.

In 1958, rural electric cooperatives in Iowa sponsored the first group of 34 young people on a week-long study tour of the nation's capital. Later that same year, another busload of students went to Washington, D.C., from Illinois. The idea grew, and other states sent busloads of young people throughout the summer. By 1959, the Youth Tour had grown to 130 students.

In 1964, NRECA began to coordinate the program and suggested that cooperative representatives from each state arrange to be in Washington, D.C., during Youth Tour week. The first year of the coordinated tour included approximately 400 young people from 12 states.

Rural Electric Youth Day.

In addition to taking in the sights and sounds of the nation's capital, all the state groups convened for Rural Electric Youth Day to learn from public figures and other inspirational speakers.

During Youth Day, a highlight of the week-long Youth Tour, students listened to an inspirational speaker, who challenged individuals of all ages that despite difficult circumstances, you can take responsibility and be empowered.

Youth Leadership Council

Caroline Short, representing PowerSouth Energy Cooperative, won the honor of representing the state of Alabama at NRECA's annual Youth Leadership Council (YLC) conference.

The council is composed of one student representative from each state that participates in NRECA's youth program. The students help direct the focus of the youth program and learn more extensive leadership skills.

As Alabama's youth representative, Short will attend the NRECA Annual Meeting and will address students at the 2026 Montgomery Youth Tour.
